

New Writing from Western Australia
Fiction
Creative Non-Fiction
Poetry
Essays

Westerly

Institutional Subscriptions

Find out how your Secondary Institution can receive online access to the 60+ year archive of Western Australia's flagship literary journal.

‘Love Lane (the work of writing)’

David Carlin

What kind of work is writing?
Like any art, it makes the world.
Even if it adds the faintest brushstroke, it tips gravity, unsettles the distribution of dark matter, pushes the future off-direction. Something new arrives.

Westerly Institutional Subscriptions

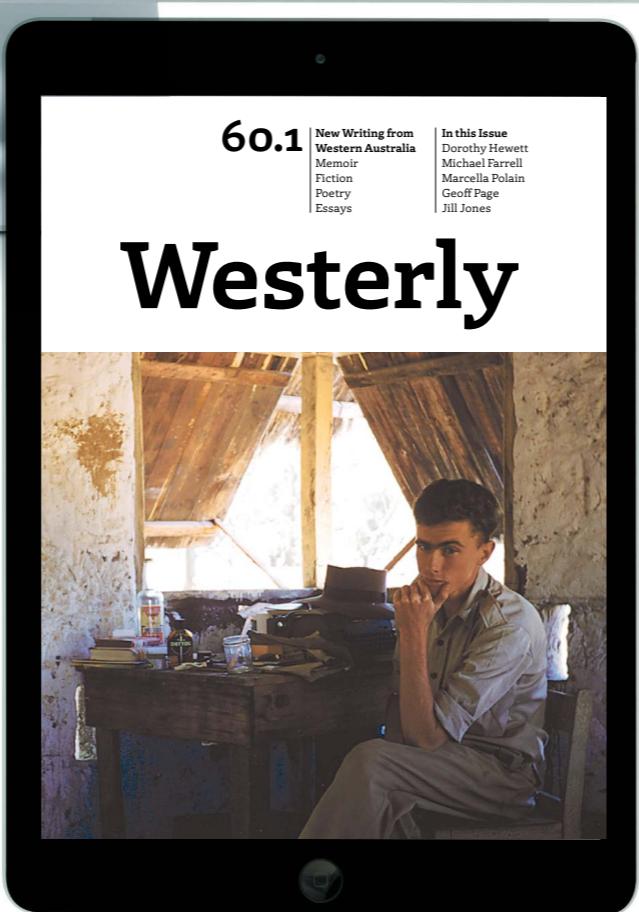

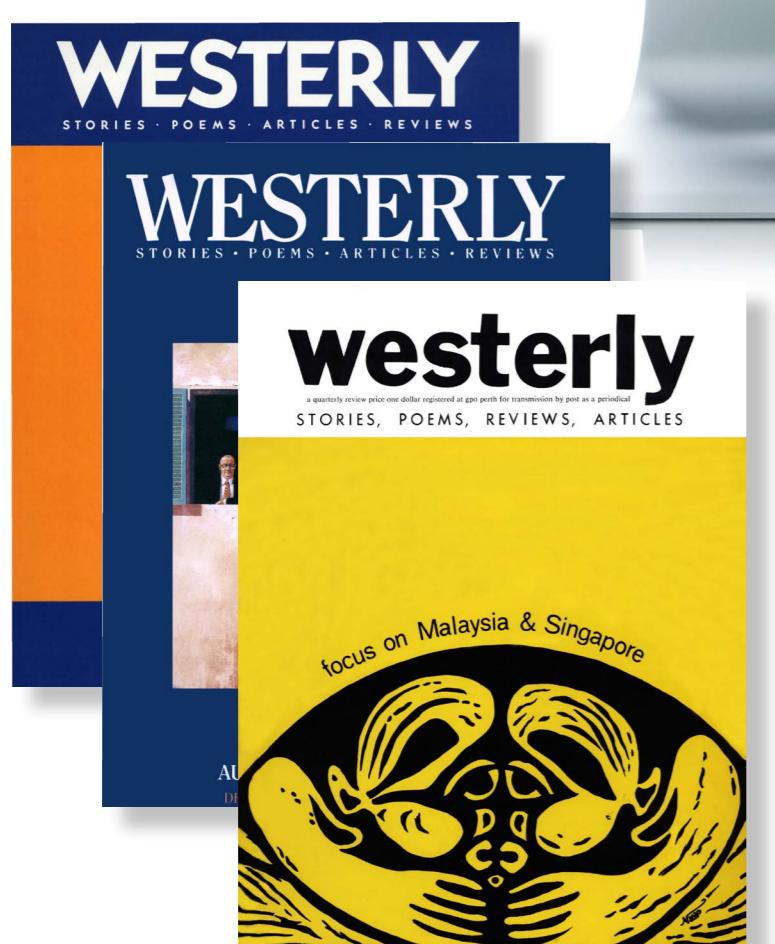

Featuring hundreds of authors from over 60 years' worth of issues, an institutional subscription to Westerly is incredibly valuable. Since 1956, we have published in print and online.

Click on the links below to discover just some of the content in Westerly.

Contributors include prominent Australian and international authors and critics, including major Western Australian writers such as Randolph Stow, T.A.G. Hungerford and Elizabeth Jolley; highly-awarded contemporary writers, including Tim Winton, Sally Morgan, David Malouf and Kim Scott; and important poets like John Kinsella, Tracy Ryan, John Mateer and Lucy Dougan.

New Writing from Western Australia
Fiction
Creative Non-Fiction
Poetry
Essays

An institutional subscription to Westerly offers you the flexibility of online access from anywhere within your institution.

It works by whitelisting the IPs of all the computers within your institution, giving users full access to content on our website, including complete 24/7 access to over 60 years of Westerly publications in our searchable digital archive, and exclusive and immediate access to our most recent issues.

All publications are available for viewing and/or download, both as full issues or as individual articles.

The institutional subscription opens up the full scope of Westerly online. We provide the ability to search by keyword, author and/or title across all issues. Because this functions through our domain, the subscription can be connected to library catalogues, and we are continually working to support the full listing of Westerly publication in your library's search function. At present, work published in Westerly is indexed in APAIS: Australian Public Affairs Information Service and AustLit, the Australian Literary Online Database. Westerly is also cited in a range of other online databases (including the Arts and Humanities Citation Index, MLA Bibliography and Scopus) with the capacity to connect to library search functions.

Areas of Relevant Study

Focus less on planning and more on engagement!

As part of an institutional subscription to Westerly, you will have access to a package of teaching and lessons plans specific to a range of topics from Westerly's over sixty years of publication, produced in collaboration with the English Teachers Association of Western Australia. As a resource, this package will help you identify the most suitable and useful teaching material within the Magazine's history of publication. Throughout our history, we have been privileged to publish pieces by several of the classic and contemporary Australian authors and poets featured on Australia's English and Literature curriculum. Exploring work from these writers, students will be encouraged to respond critically, personally and imaginatively to a range of texts.

Featuring writers like Melissa Lukashenko and Kim Scott

Westerly's publication includes a focus on the contribution of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Peoples to literature in Australia.

Prominent Australian women writers

This writing offers the possibility of discussion around themes such as such as feminism, empowerment and women in society.

Reading across place and culture

Further, as Australia's relationship with the Asian region continues to become an important aspect of contemporary society, Westerly's inclusion of well-known international writers like Ouyang Yu provides scope to consider the diversity of Asia's peoples, environments and cultures, as well as Australia's relationship with the Indian Ocean and Asian regions.

Supporting learning and pedagogy

Working with Westerly, students can develop an increased understanding of complex issues and questions arising in the modern world, particularly in an Australian context. Westerly offers a collection of rich works, ideal for supporting creative writing pedagogy as well as reading analysis. The sources we provide will support you in pulling engaging and accessible writing to the forefront, facilitating your use of Westerly in the classroom.

Complimentary Westerly Excerpts

Potholes

Into White
Darkness

Sitting on My Grandmother's
Skirts

The Sapling Barricades of Trugernanner

The Yield

Alana Hunt

Alana Hunt makes contemporary art, writes and produces culture through a variety of media across public, gallery and online spaces. She lives on Miriwoong country in the north-west of Australia and has a longstanding engagement with South Asia.

read here

Misaki Takako

Misaki Takako was born in Chiba Prefecture, Japan, in 1967. She started writing in her late teens, taught by Yoshihara Sachiko (1932-2002), a feminist poet who ran a famous feminist poetry journal, La Mer. Misaki was awarded the La Mer New Poet's Award (1990), and published her first collection, Kannō Kensashitsu (Sensual Examination Room, 1991). Her third collection, Sakura byōin shūhen (Around Sakura Hospital), won the prestigious Takami Jun Poetry Prize. Her fourth collection, Shizukani, kowareteiru niwa (Silently Decaying Garden, 2011) was awarded the Ono-city Poetry Prize.

read here

Caitlin Prince

Caitlin Prince works part of the year as an occupational therapist in remote Aboriginal communities. The rest of the year she is based in Asia, writing, blogging and completing a Masters in writing and literature with Deakin University.

read here

Alison Whittaker

Alison Whittaker is a Gomeroi poet and essayist from the floodplain fringe of northwestern New South Wales. Her debut poetry collection Lemons in the Chicken Wire was the winner of the State Library of Queensland's 2015 black&write! Fellowship.

read here

Tara June Winch

Tara June Winch is a Wiradjuri writer based in France. She is the author of After the Carnage and Swallow the Air, which won numerous literary awards and has been on the tertiary education and HSC curriculum since 2009. She was previously named Sydney Morning Herald Best Young Australian Novelist. This excerpt is from her forthcoming novel The Yield.

read here

Why invest?

Available 24/7

to Westerly's full
digital archive

Exclusive
and immediate access to our most recent issues

Advanced Search

allowing search by keyword, author
and title

Automatic
early subscription
renewal by invoice

Full Access
across all IPs within your network

Technical Support

Discounted subscription to physical copy within institutional bundle

Westerly understands the pressures of modern teaching and library management, and this online subscription helps meet these expectations.

By offering complete, unlimited access to our full back catalogue for all users whenever they want it, the subscription helps eliminate the expense of storing and lending physical copies. If you still love a physical copy, we also have discounted deals that include both full online access and each new issue sent out to you.

Pricing

Subscriptions to Westerly are priced according to the number of concurrent readers at your institution. We determine the likely number of readers using the size of your institution's IP address range. We will automatically renew your subscription annually, unless you request otherwise, by invoicing you every year at renewal.

	IP RANGE	ANNUAL FEE	PRINT ISSUES
Small institutions	< 50,000	$205.00	+$30
Large institutions	>= 50,000	$250.00	+$30

Subscribe today

If you're interested, set up is easy!

Simply fill in your details and IP address range in the application form on our website and one of our technical people will be in contact with you regarding a testing time to ensure that your access is successful. If you don't have your IP range information at hand, we can also help you find it. Only once you're satisfied with your access, Westerly will issue an invoice and you'll be free to browse our archive to your heart's content.

Click here to subscribe now

THE UNIVERSITY OF WESTERN AUSTRALIA

westerlymag.com.au